Orfeo To Open Artist Series

6 Of Faculty Teach Town Night School

Several Wartburg faculty members are at present teaching night classes at the Waverly high school on Monday evenings as part of an adult instruction program carried on by the local schools, according to Dr. Carl F. Reuss, dean of the faculty here and chairman of the evening school program committee.

Dr. G. J. Neumann, head of the English department at Wartburg, is teaching a course in masterpieces of literature, while George Bjorgan, recent addition to the sociol sciences department, is in charge of an international relations class.

Miss Snyder Has Cooking.

In the field of vocational training, Miss Hazel May Snyder, of the home economics department, is instructing a class in foods for the modern family. Miss Helen Wright, division of fine arts, is teaching drawing and paintings.

Typing and hookkeeping are being taken care of by C. W. Pries, college business manager, and Carl Muench of the business administration department.

Ed Winter Only Student.

Only student of the college on the night school teaching staff is Ed Winter, senior, who is teaching a course in photography.

Other courses are being offered in ceramics, textiles, tailoring and knitting, as well as in welding, farm problems, family relations and square dancing. The course in square dancing is taught by Miss Glenda Aubrey, visiting teacher from the Waterloo public schools, who has appeared several times on the Wartburg campus.

Trumpet To Open Ad Errors Contest For Show Tickets

Something new is going to he odded. Starting soon, perhaps in this issue, the TRUMPET will sponsor a new contest which will he open to all Wartburg students with the exception of members of the TRUMPET staff.

From time to time, five misspelled words will be purposely inserted in the TRUMPET ads, and the first two students to show up at the TRUMPET office in the White House with the corrections will each receive a complimentary ticket to the Waverly theater.

These tickets, made available by Vern Hagemann, local theater owner, will be good for the following Friday or Saturday night, and payment of the 10-cent tax is all that is necessary.

"Check the ads each week," was Advertising Manager Ray DeWeerth's advice to contestants. "If you find five errors in spelling, make corrections above the mistakes and hring your TRUMPET to the office."

Underclassman Pix Set For Oct. 23, 24

Class pictures of freshmen, sophomores and juniors will he taken next Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 23 and 24, in the lounge of Wartburg hall, as announced by Don Groskreutz, junior, editor of the Fortress, college annual.

"Any students, four-year or two-year, who plan to graduate next spring and who have not had their pictures taken as yet should do so either next Monday or Tuesday, being careful to designate that theirs will he a graduation picture," added Groskreutz.

Good Will Gesture Sees UN Flag Presentation To Waverly, Wartburg

As a gesture of good will, the United Nations flag featured on the Wartburg Players' float in the Homecoming parade will be presented to the college and Waverly by the campus dramatics club, according to Ernest Maulwurf, junior, president of the organization.

Idea of the presentation was first conceived by Raymond Wilderman of the speech department and Prof. A. A. Aardal of the physics department. Mr. Wilderman then copied the design from an original.

Time and place for the presentation have not yet been set, but will be announced in the near future. The flag will be on public display for visitors and interested persons.

Maulwurf also released the results of Wartburg Players' elections, held Oct. 5 in the Little Theater. Philip Mueller, senior, was chosen vice-president; Lois Snyder, senior, hecame the new secretary, while Judy Vogel, also a senior, was elected treasurer.

In preparotion for their first production, "Elizabeth the Queen," players are this week beginning to work on the elaborate costumes required for the play.

Average Crowd Expected For Island Choral Group

By Ruth Lechner

Tomorrow night at 8 p.m., the curtain will officially rise on Warthurg's 1950 Artist Series when the much-celehrated Orfeo Hispanico de Majorca appears here for its long-awaited concert.

Under the direction of Maestro Juan Thomas, whom Artur Rubinstein himself called "one of the greatest choral conductors of our time," the colorful Majorcan vocal group will present a varied concert ranging all the way from old Spanish folk songs to Palestrina's classical "Canzonetta."

Crowd To Ba Average.

Crowd for the performance is expected to be about average, according to Dr. A. W. Swensen, head of the chemistry department here and chairman of the Artist series committee. Reservations have heen received from surrounding towns, some coming from as far away as Independence and Greene.

Among the selections on the program are Chopin's well-known "Bacchanale," "Acclamation of the Peasants" from Bach's "Peasant Cantata," and the "Hallelujah" by Mozart, arranged for chorus by Maestro Thomas himself.

De Falla On Program.

For lighter numbers, the group will draw liberally from De Falla, Gelabert, Cabezon and Victoria, as well as from the numerous works of Thomas' own composition. The program is divided into four parts and allows, contrary to practice, for two intermissions.

Many of the numbers that will be heard tomorrow night have heen performed by the chorus hefore European audiences and have won for the group the unmatched reputation which it enjoys at present on the continent. American listeners have never yet had the opportunity to hear these singers, since this is the first overseas tour they have undertaken since their beginning in the early thirties.

None Are Professional.

Another remarkahle feature about the group is that not one of the members was a professional singer before joining Maestro Thomas. The membership is drawn in its entirety from Majorcan peasant stock and thus reflects well the musical disposition of the island's population.

After the concert, a formal social hour will be held in the Little Theater. All students, faculty members and friends are urged to attend, according to Miss Adeline Langrock, physical education instructor here and chairman of the reception committee. This will be one of the rare chances to meet and talk to the conductor and his singers.

Attend Conference

Attending the conference of the Association of Lutheran College Faculties Friday night and today are 12 members of the Wartburg faculty. The conference is being held at Augsburg college, Minneapolis.

Term Project OK'd

Students approved the idea of having a student body project this semester, according to results of last Thursday's vote in convo. Figures, as released yesterday by Norm Fintel, senior and student body president, indicated 148 for and 121 against.

C. Pries To Attend Buyers Convention

Attending a regional conference of the National Eductional Buyers association next week will be Clarence W. Pries, college business manager. This meeting, which includes representatives from Iowa and Nebraska, will be held on the campus of the State University of Iowa, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 24 and 25.

Pries has been selected chairman of one of the Tuesday sessions, devoted to a discussion of prices. Wartburg has been active in the association for the past several years.

Festivities Efforts Rewarded After Hectic Week-End

By Paul Darneuer

With the smoke cleared away after the Homecoming week-end, several individuals and groups have emerged with prizes for Kastle Kapers skits, parade floats, campus decorations, and room decorations.

Kastle Kapers first prize of $5 was awarded to the sophomore class for its presentation of "Turn of the Tide." Freshmen took second prize of $3 with "Notsohatma Randy," and Lutheran Student association received the $2 third prize for its version of "Casey at the Bat."

Nelson Annex First.

Carrying away float honors were Nelson annex with first prize of $5, Music Appreciation club, second prize of $3, and the junior class, third prize of $2. Rating honorable mention was the Science club's float. Floats were judged on the basis of originality, interpretation of theme, cleverness of construction and attractiveness.

In the campus decorations division, Grossmann hall will gain possession of the plaque awarded to the winner. Originality, relationship to theme and decorativeness were the points considered in judging.

Room 410 Wins.

Nancie Bauman and Jo Kampfe, sophomores living in room 410, Wartburg hall, received first prize for women's room decorations. Katherine Mueller, Elizabeth Schauer and Darlene Dierks of room 206, Wartburg hall, took second, and Marian Pankow and Evelyn Mast, residing in room 2 of the White House, third.

Receiving honorable mention were Bernice Hilmer and Bonnie Balke, room 408 of Warthurg hall; Anna Drefs, Darlene Mikes and Joanne Schmitt, room 205, and Arlene Suko and Dorothy Draper, freshmen living at the Becker residence.

Grossmann Sweeps Prizas.

In the men's division, Ray DeWeerth, Lloyd Ziebarth, Chris Huber and Allen DeWeerth were awarded first prize for room 220 in Grossmann hall. Lu Siafkes and Boh Meyer received second prize for room 325, Grossmann hall. Third place honors went to Merrill Fellger and Robert Farner, room 322 of Grossmann hall.

Rating honorable mention were Jack Volkmann and Roger Schmidt, room 208 in North hall, and Harold Wianke and Mel Kramer, occupants of room 203, North hall.

Raised arms, torso and head in above picture of "Notsohotma Randy" belong to "Stretch" Peterson. The third arm, barely visible underneath the right shoulder, and the legs are Ted Heinecken's.

Freshmen won second prize at Kastle Kapers last Friday night with their impersonation of the double-jointed Indian fakir.

Gauntlet Committee Announces Reopening Of Knight Rec Room

Official reopening of Warthurg's recreation center has been announced hy the Gauntlet committee. The all-school social room is located in the basement of Grossmann hall.

Use of the Gauntlet is restricted to those holding membership cards. All students may obtain cards at the cost of 25 cents from Gauntlet committee members or from the dorm supervisor, the Rev. Dean Kilgust.

Myron Gruenwald, freshman, is chairman of the committee. Other members are John DeYoung and Gerald Menning, seniors; Lester Becker, junior; William Kraemer, sophomore, and Doris Mueller, freshman.

Membership cards which were purchased last semester are valid for the first semester of this school term.

Hours of the Gauntlet are as follows:

Monday through Thursday, 3 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday, 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., Saturday 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday, 1-10 p.m.

Answer The Call!

Crusade for freedom. That's what General Eisenhower called the nation-wide drive for signatures on so-called "freedom scrolls," by which the signers endorse, publicly and fearlessly, the ideals embedded in American democracy.

Symbol of the Crusade is a bronze freedom bell, which will be dedicated next Tuesday, Oct. 24, at a mass ceremony in Berlin, Germany. Thousands upon thousands of freedom scrolls, containing the names of millions of Americans, will be flown to Berlin for the occasion and will be enshrined in the pedestal upon which the bell is to rest.

This is America's answer to that new kind of war—psychological warfare. This is the outcry of a courageous nation in the name of all that is decent, and sacred and beautiful. This is the free nations' most powerful weapon against Russian propaganda.

In weeks past, colleges all over America have been asked by General Lucius Clay, chairman of the Crusade, to help in the drive for signatures. Unfortunately, Homecoming and its business interfered on our campus with the carrying through of such a program. But we may well support the Crusade morally, by following its course and praying for its success. General Clay says:

"There is no one who has a greater stake in the result of the battle for men's minds now rampant in the world than have the young people of America. I am confident that college men and women will want to stand up and be counted in the roll call for world freedom."

We are behind them, those men and women who signed their names. Their crusade is our crusade, the Crusade for Freedom.

Why The Small Vote?

Why did so many students fail to vote in the recent elections for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities". The total of 137 votes cast, when compared to an enrollment of 591, is a rather pitiful comment on our interest in student affairs.

Part of the fault may of course lie with the short notice that students were given concerning the election. That, however, was beyond the power of those who were in charge, since the election results have to be in sometime early next week.

Still, it seems that a few more days would not have mattered, and a greater total vote would almost certainly have resulted. There is something wrong with both our attitude and timing of the election when fewer than one-fourth of the student body casts ballots.

Congrats On A Resolution Well Kept

This year's student body should certainly be congratulated for one thing—the almost total elimination of campus cutting. Never in the past three years has the grass looked so healthy, and the sidewalks so well used, as this fall.

The enlarged sidewalks, of course, helped a great deal. We don't have to walk on the lawn any more when we go to meals or to convo. Nevertheless, there also seems to have been a change in attitude on the part of students. Congratulations on a resolution well kept!

POLITICAL PAGEANT

By Wayne Stumme

Both Parties Have Failed

The political experts are again at work in these days preceding the fall elections, and their collective opinion seems to be that the Republicans will gain seats in both houses of our national legislature, but that the Democrats will retain their control. The voters soon must decide whether the administration party deserves, by reason of accomplishment, to remain in office, or whether the opposition, the Republicans, should be awarded a chance by virtue of their statesman-like attitude during the past two years.

The Republican party, taken as a whole, has failed miserably. All Americans, of whatever political conviction, can expect of the minority party that it stimulate good government by intelligent opposition to legislation not in the best interests of the country, and that it serve as a check against arbitrary action on the part of the majority. Instead, the Republicans have spent their time as the highest representatives of the American people engaged in an inane invective and pointless criticism—at the same time refusing to substitute any better solution of their own manufacture.

Little more can be said for the Democrats. The larger part of the membership of both groups has blindly followed and obeyed the dictates of party leaders and unrepresentative pressure groups. Gone is the far-sightedness of abler Congresses, and in its place is the stupidity of men determined to gain for their voting constituency federal "plums," but whose concern for the welfare of the rest of the country is negligible. Thriftlessness and confusion, blunders—these characterize an administration which is not only supported by the activity of its own party but by the lassitude and pettiness of the opposition.

The recriminations are severe, but they do not apply to all members of the two major political bodies now serving in Congress. Men like Douglas of Illinois, Lodge of Massachusetts, Morse of Oregon and others of their caliber in both the House and Senate are a credit to the nation, even though their views might honestly and radically differ. Men like these, in both parties, can serve to some extent as models of what national legislators can and should be.

But the sobering fact remains. We, the American people, have been poorly served by the greater share of our elected representatives. Now is the time for men of vision, courage and moderation to assume these high offices, and if the existing parties are too tradition-hound and interest-pledged to bring them before the voting public, a new party, representing honesty, justice and efficiency should come into being and present such candidates.

LIKABLE, SOFT-SPOKEN

Doc Helps Many

WITH TROUBLES, PROBLEMS

By Claude Grelling

"Just to get acquainted."

That's the traditional hand-written postscript identifying the cards sent out by Wartburg's likable, soft-spoken chaplain, Dr. William Hulme. And when Doc Hulme says "to get acquainted," he means just that.

Doctor Hulme

There's No Threat Here.

But that's only one of the unique features about the unique job—one might almost call it a mission—of the chief student counselor. Contrary to the tradition of most of the little white cards which show up in student's mail boxes, these missives carry no threat of reprimand, are surrounded with none of the awesome halo of administrative importance. They're invitations—and and that's all!

"I'm not supposed to be a judge, and would never want to be one," says Doc Hulme, and the sincerity in his voice proves that he means what he says. "I'm here for one thing only—to help students with their problems, academic, family or personal."

He's Helped Many.

Upperclassmen will vouch for the fact that Doc Hulme, with his down-to-earth, friendly advice, has helped more than one to untangle a situation which might have become dangerous if it hadn't been settled. Some of his help-seekers have come to know him so personally that the temptation to call him "Bill" instead of "Doctor Hulme" is often hard to control.

"I like young people, perhaps mainly because I am one of them, and I want to give them the chance to tell their troubles to a friend. If I can become that—a real friend—to those who come to see me, I will have accomplished what I set out to do," he adds.

Perhaps the most gratifying feature of Doc's service, and one that is highly appreciated by all who talk to him, is that he doesn't preach. There is no sugar-sweet moralizing here, no righteous indignation at the sinner, no sitting in holy judgment. As a matter of fact, Doc does very little of the talking—most of the time he just listens, and thinks.

Few Are Disappointed.

When he does talk, however, he presents solutions. Not to all problems perhaps, and he doesn't claim to. But what he says is helpful. Few are the students who have left the little bright office with the view on the south campus without feeling a little better, a little more cheerful.

Doc has been at his job for over a year now, and he keeps sending out those little white cards. From the schedule he keeps, it seems that Wartburg students have not yet run out of problems. And still the door is open, for anyone who wants to drop in, any time. Just to get acquainted.

I've a hone to pick with journalism as a whole. For some strange and unaccountable reason it's not "kosher" to write this column in the first person. With a by-line yet. I still shouldn't say "I think" or "I say." No, it's "we think" and "We say" and that, too, I'm told, is obsolete.

* * *

Really now, I'm not fooling anyone with this dodge. All of you know I'm not twins; my mother couldn't have stood the shock!

* * *

Just for kicks, why don't we imagine that my name is John? Then this strip might go something like this—John observed that numerous students were "in a fine sweat" this week. Could the temperature or the counseling cards have had something to do with this situation?

* * *

This might even lead to a variation on the "John's Other Wife" routine.

* * *

But enough of such chit-chat; I must get at my correspondence.

* * *

Mr. George Roleder
Wartburg Seminary

Sir:

Now don't get the impression that we are unappreciative of you and your colleagues' visiting us the past week-end. We love you, one and all, dearly. But the inconvenience! While we're up half the night preparing items for your diversion and entertainment, you're asleep in OUR sacks. Comes the dawn, and what happens—so much noise my friend, Mr. Gundacker, can't get his rest. For weeks we shall feel stymied because of the sudden avalanche of good looks, talent and A. B. degrees that descended upon us. And I must mention the fact that the supply of available women was sadly depleted by your untimely invasion.

In spite of all the foregoing, we're glad you came. And next year, come Homecoming, we'll brace ourselves and welcome you all back again. Thanks for dropping in!

And now, Mr. Editor, I have revelled quite luxuriously in the delights of the personal pronoun "I." I regret any anguish I might have brought your journalistic soul by my straying from accepted procedure, and I repent completely of all my misdeeds and shortcomings. It shall never happen again. . . . maybe.

Torrid Football Marks Peacock Win As Black And Orange Tumble 20-14

By Rennie Schumacher

Giving out with a monumental exhibition of sparkling play, Wartburg was nipped at the string by Upper Iowa university, 20-14, in a torrid football brawl staged last Thursday night at Oelwein before a packed house.

Orange and Black led, 14-13, when the Peacocks got their winning touchdown four minutes before the final gun. Big Jim Unmacht led the Knights' rushing attack with 110 yards in 19 carries. The big fullback from Dubuque averaged 5½ yards per carry. Upper Iowa, however, was more effective through the airways than the usually air-minded Knights.

Runs 95 Yards For TD.

George Richards, UIU safety man, scooped up the opening kick-off on the five and cake-walked down the sidelines 95 yards to deal the touchdown column as the crowd sat bug-eyed.

With Unmacht leading the pack, however, the Knights fought back. In nine running plays, the Nelsonmen advanced to Upper Iowa's four, but couldn't score as UIU took over on downs.

Four plays later, Dale Kelly's punt gave Wartburg the oval on their 45 with a minute left in the first quarter. On third down, Unmacht outwitted the Peacock line for 12 yards. Kromer's jump pass over the line was snatched by Bowray for another first down on the 28.

Kromer Lifts TD Pass.

On third down, Kromer connected with a short heave to Steinhauer, and Unmacht rammed to the 13 for first and ten. Kromer once more faded back and lifted an aerial to Kittleson in the end zone for the TD. Cronrath broke the tie with a bar-splitting placement. Wartburg 7, Upper Iowa 6. That was the half.

As the third quarter opened, Kittleson, recovered a fumble almost on the mid field stripe, and the crowd had scarcely stopped cheering when the same Kittleson ran to the right, cut through center, and darted 51 yards for paydirt. Cronrath again converted and Wartburg led, 14-6.

Kelly Pass Scores.

UIU got back into the game when Kelly heaved the leather to Richards on the Wartburg 15, and the receiver scampered for a TD. Richards converted and Upper Iowa trailed by but one point.

Nine minutes of playing time remained when Doc Dormann's proteges started their victorious march from their own 16. Kelly's passing and Richards' running consistently foiled the Knights' attempts to stop the drive, and Kelly finally scored from the 6. Richards' placement made the final score Upper Iowa 20, Wartburg 14.

Ed Kittleson Receives 'Athlete-Of-The-Week' For Homecoming Play

By Wayne Koetz

Ed Kittleson, sophomore from St. Ansgar, was nominated by the "W" club committee this week to receive the Athlete-of-the-Week award for his outstanding ball handling during the Homecoming game last Saturday.

Ed performed brilliantly in the backfield, and in cooperation with Paul Kromer completed 11 out of

Ed Kittleson

18 passes for a total of 153 yards. It was Kittleson, who late in the first quarter of the game with the rugged Beavers, scored the final Wartburg tally in the 25-13 Buena Vista victory.

Kittleson not only uses his 5-foot 11-inch, 180-pound frame to good advantage in passing ball for the Knights, but for three years in high school he also played excellently on the gridiron. He lettered in football, baseball and basketball before graduating from St. Ansgar in 1949. This is his second consecutive year on the Knight squad.

His hard running and his fly-paper fingers make him a threat in any game as the opponents know only too well. Ed is a consistent tackler and one of the Knight's most able offensive pilots.

Like most athletes, Ed is a physical education major with hopes to make a name for himself in the coaching field.

Inspired BV Team Takes Game, 25-13 On 19-Point Splurge

By Chuck Lutz

Wartburg's gridiron Knights failed to snap up their "Mid-Century Challenge" last Saturday afternoon, and in doing so lost their first Homecoming game in 10 years. Buena Vista was the spoiler, using a powerful third quarter splurge to win 25-13, before 1,200 disappointed homecomers.

Strong hopes of cracking the win column for the first time this year came to the Orange and Black rooters as Wartburg opened strong. The Knights unveiled their passing game immediately and marched to the Beaver 28 after receiving the opening kickoff. Stopped momentarily by a pass interception, the Knights got a second chance when Pete Becker scooped up a Buena Vista fumble.

Sowers Scores Off Tackle.

Kittleson hit Steinhauer for a first down via the air on the eleven as the quarter ended. Sowers needed but one play to go the rest of the way on an off-tackle drive. From a fake place-kick formation, the Knights got their first extra point of the year as Kromer passed to Steinhauer to make the score 7-0.

Buena Vista finally scored with less than two minutes to go in the half. After recovering a Wartburg fumble, the Beavers used a hidden ball trick to cross the double line. The conversion attempt failed and Wartburg led at halftime, 7-6.

BV Adds 19 Points.

Beavers came back strong and added 19 points to their total before Wartburg could catch a second breath. With two-thirds of the third quarter gone, Wartburg's lead had been replaced by a one-sided 25-7 count, in favor of Buena Vista.

For the remaining 20 minutes, the Knights again controlled the game but couldn't make up the deficit. Unmacht's power drives and the dead-eye passing of little Paul Kromer fed the Knights in a 60-yard scoring drive halfway through the last quarter. Kittleson scored from the 14 on a pass from Kromer. The placekick was futile and the scoreboard read 25-13 at the final gun.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS With Freddie

Fritz Steinhauer, "The Snatcher", has probably set a new record in Iowa conference play with his record of seven catches in the Buena Vista-Wartburg Homecoming clash. This brilliant end has pulled down 20 catches for a total of 297 yards.

* * * *

Luther's Norsemen broke the ice last week and piled up 20 points against the proud birds from Fayette. Of course this was not enough to down the boys from Upper Iowa. Let us hope that things freeze up for the Norsemen next Friday when Wartburg goes to Luther. Things might be quite warm if "Nellie's" backfield men can overcome their injuries.

* * * *

This week the intramural teams have picked some rather unusual monickers for their squads. The Grossmann III team decided to be Cavaliers, possibly to be in step with the North hall Ambassadors. The Grossmann I and II squads went to the birds for names and came up with Bluejays and Falcons. Southwest boys have decided to be Armchairs while the Northwest fellows are Badgers. What, no Wolves?

* * * *

Wayne State Teachers college of Wayne, Neb., is entertaining hopes of winning another conference championship with five wins and no losses. They undoubtedly will be no pushover for the Knight squad when it makes the overnight trip to Wayne on Nov. 4.

* * * *

Bob Gronlund, seminarian and former Wartburg student body president, won last week's dopester contest and thus merits the sports Analyst-of-the-Week distinction. He predicted correctly all 10 winners in last week's contest and gave the Minnesota-Northwestern score within one point. He certainly deserves the Knighthead emblem, which is the weekly prize.

First Teaching Proves Interesting, Exacting For Forty Scared But Eager Future Tutors

By Roger Schmidt

Once again a certain portion of the Wartburg family is leading the dual role of student and teacher since observation for practice teaching began last Monday. These student teachers are exerting their influences not only in Waverly, but in Janesville, Shell Rock and Denver as well.

Approximately forty Wartburg students, two- and four-year teachers, will serve their six weeks' apprenticeship this semester under the supervision of Miss Stella Austered and Dr. Martin Wiedersaenders, both of the education department of the college.

They Wear Me Out.

As Katherine Smith, senior history major, stated when commenting on her seventh grade Iowa history class, "The students are so full of pep that it wears me out just watching them."

For some of the "teachers of tomorrow," seeing a teacher in action answers many questions. It also, in the words of Esther Haverkamp, two-year teacher, "Makes one appreciate the work that goes into the preparation for a smooth running day."

Just A Little Scared, Too.

All will not be easy for the aspiring teachers. As some of them indicated, they may be just a little scared when the time of actual teaching arrives. Then, too, there is the dual task of keeping up on college courses and preparing lesson plans.

Maybe Dick Tillou, senior physical education major, expressed the feelings of more than one practice teacher when he said, "It's O. K. now, but it will be better when I'm making money."

Old Heidelberg Life On Hans Sachs List

Scenes of student life in "Old Heidelberg" will be shown in the band room of Old Main Tuesday evening Oct. 24, immediately after chapel. Projections will be followed by the regular meeting of Hans Sachs Verein, the campus German club.

"Everyone is invited to attend, especially students of German," stated the Rev. Walter Tillmanns, adviser.

Social hour and refreshments will follow the meeting.

Lettermen Initiate Eleven Newcomers

Wartburg "W" club boasts 11 new members as a result of initiation ceremonies held in the Knights gymnasium wrestling room recently.

Seniors Jim Denner and John DeYoung went through the undisclosed horrors of the evening in order to gain membership. Lester Becker, Lu Siefkes and Bob Rodewald, all juniors, can also say they "belong."

Representing the sophomore class as new members of the campus lettermen's organization are Fred Downing, Ed Kittleson, John Kurtt, Russ Mueller, Tom Olson and Bill Woods.

'Why The Bible?' On LSA Program

"Why the Bible?" is the topic selected for discussion at the Lutheran Student association meeting Sunday, Oct. 22, at 6 p.m., in Grossmann hall lounge. George Krumrey, senior, will direct the program.

Regional convention of LSA will be held at Iowa State college, Ames, Oct. 27 to 29. All LSA members may attend. Those interested should contact Phil Houston, junior.

"The First Lady of Aviation" from the WORLD BOOK ENCYCLOPEDIA courtesy of Field Enterprises, Inc.

Affectionately known as AE, this titian-haired, freckled-face girl from Kansas flew her way into the hearts of people everywhere. She sky rocketed to fame in 1932 when she became the first woman pilot to solo trans-Atlantic. AE went on to establish many other aviation firsts for both men and women pilots. Her courageous flying feats were headlined in newspapers throughout the world and her infectious smile beamed familiarly from magazine covers.

On the last lap of a round-the-world flight in 1937, AE expertly "revved" up her Electra, fled down the New Guinea runway, pointed the plane's nose into the vast blue heavens and disappeared from sight . . . forever.
